To keep your Fronts in good condition, use only a soft, damp cloth soaked in mild cleaners to clean them. Under no circumstances should you use strong detergents, as well as solvents, hard or abrasive sponges, as well as liquids and pastes containing abrasives.

If your Fronts have been contaminated with strong coloring substances such as coffee, tea, red wine or other, remember to immediately clean them to avoid permanent discoloration.

Make sure that your Fronts are properly installed and use them for their intended purpose. Remember that any impacts with hard or sharp objects can permanently damage the surface of the varnish.

Due to the sensitivity of the Fronts to high temperatures, remember not to place the Fronts directly under the activated halogen. Otherwise your Front will be damaged.

If you intend to install the Fronts in the kitchen in which the hood is installed, make sure that it is always “on” while cooking.

If there is a dishwasher in your kitchen, strictly follow the instructions for its use. You cannot leave the dishwasher with the door open or tilted after finishing washing to dry the dishes faster. If you use an older generation oven, not having a cooling system or that emits too high temperature (temperature exceeding 70 °C), you must take into account the negative effects of high temperature when mounting your Fronts. You should prevent the damages, for example, by increasing the distance between the Fronts and the oven, or by placing an isolator (i.e. chipboard) between the oven and the side edge of the Front.
